2. ACCOUNTING POLICIES - continued

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognised in respect of all timing differences that have originated but not reversed at the balance sheet date.

Timing differences arise from the inclusion of income and expenses in tax assessments in periods different from those in which they are recognised in financial statements. Deferred tax is measured using tax rates and laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the year end and that are expected to apply to the reversal of the timing difference.

Unrelieved tax losses and other deferred tax assets are recognised only to the extent that it is probable that they will be recovered against the reversal of deferred tax liabilities or other future taxable profits.

Going concern

Since March 2020, the spread of COVID-19 has severely impacted many local economies around the globe. In many countries, businesses are being forced to cease or limit operations for long or indefinite periods of time. Measures taken to contain the spread of the virus including, travel bans, quarantines, social distancing and closure of non-essential services have triggered significant disruptions to businesses worldwide, resulting in an economic slowdown. Governments and banks have responded with monetary and fiscal interventions to stabilise the current economic conditions.

The duration and impact of the COVID-19 pandemic currently remains unclear. It is not possible to reliably estimate the duration and severity of these consequences, as well as their impact the financial position and results of the company for future periods, however the directors consider that the financial support from the government is sufficient to enable the company to continue for the foreseeable future and that there is no significant doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern. The directors consider this to be a temporary downturn and that business is expected to return to previous levels once the pandemic is over.
