2. Achievements and Performance

WY.

2016 was another busy year for the TDI team. Public interest in sexual offending has been heightened by a succession of big grooming prosecutions and other high-profile cases. The increase in acts of terrorism has made everybody aware of the need to be alert and to report concerns, and we are exploring whether the skills and knowledge participants acquire through our training could be made more explicitly transferable to other areas of risk, without diminishing our focus on sexual risk.

Activity

Our Leisurewatch membership programme has now been running for more than 15 years, and around 15,000 people at almost 400 individual sites have been trained. Aimed at making public sites safer, especially in relation to sexual offending, the programme has two phases, initial set-up and ongoing maintenance. The first phase includes site audits to assess risk; training for front-line staff to understand patterns of behaviour and increase observational skills and confidence in reporting and challenging concerns; support for managers in triaging and reporting incidents or concerns; setting up a referral system to ensure that relevant information gets through to the specialist units of the police, and branding for the site to demonstrate that staff have been trained to look out for risk. The maintenance phase offers annual top-up and refresher training; regular newsletters; the referral system; telephone support for members in related areas, and a programme of mystery visits to check the efficacy of the scheme.

In 2016 Leisurewatch continued to be valued by our members, and although we lost some sites because of closure or transfer of ownership, numbers remained about the same as new members joined. We were delighted to welcome the Capital and Regional group of shopping centres into membership, training staff in malls in the Southern half of England. Despite major local government reorganisation we increased the number of member sites in Northern Ireland, where Leisurewatch remains very popular. In England, for the first time, a local authority is making membership of Leisurewatch a requirement as it puts the delivery of its leisure services out to tender. This is a significant milestone for us, which we hope to see replicated by other authorities wanting to increase safety in leisure facilities on their patch. During the year, we trained 1043 people in 127 training sessions, had 218 sites in membership and received 63 referrals - an increase on previous years.

On other fronts, we delivered tailored training to HMP Forest Bank, and to Coastline Housing in Redruth, and began to review our approach to specialist training. Having delivered training in the field for more than twenty years, we are finding that organisations are increasingly valuing our ability to build programmes meeting specific needs. Our trainers are highly experienced and adept at working with staff at all levels, in generic and specialist roles. During the year, we developed a number of new sessions, ranging from risk management to motivational interviewing, and in 2017 have been moving to a more modular approach.

More time was spent developing an adapted version of Leisurewatch for large churches and cathedrals, although the anticipated pilot was further delayed by staffing changes in the proposed venue and also by the implementation of a new Church of England safeguarding programme which has taken precedence for diocesan staff. We don't know whether we will manage to get our programme off the ground in 2017, although the idea is still well received by senior CofE officials.

Effort put into improving the website and following up interest from potential clients has begun to pay off towards the latter half of the year, with a number of bookings for work with organisations new to us made for early 2017.

People

The core team remained small, with three part time staff making up a complement of 1.4 full time equivalents. Lin_Green_was_successful in 'upselling' to existing Leisurewatch clients, and Matt Jenkins provided an excellent research resource as well as managing corporate matters. Brian Herron in Northern Ireland and Sue Kennedy and Mike Way in England delivered all our training, with uniformly high-scoring feedback from participants. Together the team worked to upgrade and enhance existing training programmes, and to develop new materials in response to requests from a variety of organisations.

On the board, we said goodbye to Catherine Sowerby, who had made a great contribution to TDI over two years, but was moving to take on new professional challenges. To our delight, Dave Gardiner, who had been an advisory member of the board for many years in his role as a senior leader with the Probation Service, decided to jump the fence and become one of our Associates delivering training with effect from 2017. Whilst this left us with a gap on the board, his experience and credibility make him a great addition to our staff team.

FI

We are grateful to Sue Winfield and Mike Brown for their work as trustees. Mike has worked closely with Matt to ensure that our finances stay in shape, and we greatly appreciate his wisdom and expertise.

Finances

Once again, all our activity was directly associated with our charitable objectives, and no expenditure was made on fund-raising. We continued to strive for self-sufficiency, aiming to cover as much as possible of our core costs with the income from Leisurewatch and tailored training. We still need to seek some grant funding to help us work on projects which may not generate income. Inevitably, the context in which we work is tough, with public sector cuts continuing to affect training budgets, and the margin of contribution from our training is very slim. As a charity, our interest is in spreading the effect of our work as widely as possible, and we do not look to make substantial profits. However, our training work will only be sustainable in the long run if clients recognise its value and continue to pay for the full cost of delivery, rather than expecting it to be subsidised.

During 2016 we met our target for bringing in new Leisurewatch members, but this growth was unfortunately countered by the unexpected loss of several relatively large members due to changes in site ownership. We had also hoped to bring several pieces of work with housing and care providers into 2016 which in fact have delivered in early 2017, so that we also underperformed on this front in year. Since we matched lower income with lower expenditure, we were able to avoid real financial upset, but it was disappointing to be unable, yet again, to gather even the smallest of reserves.

We are extremely grateful to the grant funders who made it possible for us not only to survive but to continue working on projects and developments not linked to direct income generation. In 2016 these were:

The Hadrian Trust
The W.A. Handley Trust
The Barbour Foundation
The Council for Social Concern
The William Leech Foundation

3. Plans for future periods

As we prepare these accounts, 2017 is showing a growth in interest from specialist organisations, and we are working on a number of challenging projects. We are looking to strengthen the core team so that we can devote a little more effort to promoting our work. The financial environment is no easier than it was in 2016, and we are likely to continue to be dependent to some extent on the support of charitable grants if we want to retain our flexibility and responsiveness.

The issue of sexual offending has never been more topical, with a huge amount of public interest and concern around what seems like an unending stream of high-profile cases. Despite the existence of many very large charities in the field, we believe that TDI continues to occupy a unique niche, engaging lay people in reducing risk without vigilantism and helping professionals to manage complex situations in a highly sensitive field.

We will continue to strive to do our work and to balance the books. It would be a bonus to achieve our ambition of a small reserve at the end of 2017, but we will be even more content if we are able to look back

4. Statement of Trustee Responsibilities

The trustees are responsible for preparing the Trustees' Annual Report and the Financial Statements in accordance with applicable law and United Kingdom Accounting Standards (United Kingdom Generally Accepted Accounting Practice).

Charity SORP requires the trustees to prepare financial statements for each financial year which give a true and fair view of the state of affairs of the charity and of incoming resources and application of resources, including the receipts and payments of the charity for that year. In preparing those financial statements, the trustees are required to:

- · select suitable accounting policies and apply them consistently;
- observe the methods and principles in the Charities SORP;
- make judgements and estimates that are reasonable and prudent;
- state whether applicable accounting standards have been followed, subject to any material departures disclosed and explained in the financial statements;
- prepare the financial statements on the going concern basis unless it is inappropriate to presume that the charity will continue in operation.

The trustees are responsible for keeping accounting records that disclose with reasonable accuracy at any time the financial position of the charity. They are also responsible for safeguarding the assets of the charity and hence for taking reasonable steps for the prevention and detection of fraud and other irregularities.

Lireport on the financial statements of The Derwent Initiative for the year ended 31 December 2016, which are set out on pages 6 to 14

Respective responsibilities of trustees and examiner

The trustees (who are also directors of the company for the purposes of company law) are responsible for the preparation of the accounts. The trustees consider that an audit is not required for the year under section 144(2) of the Charities Act 2011 (the 2011 Act) and that an independent examination is needed.

Having satisfied myself that the charity is not subject to audit under company law and is eligible for independent examination, it is my responsibility to:

- examine the accounts under section 145 of the 2011 Act,
- to follow the procedures laid down in the general Directions given by the Charity Commission (under section 145(5)(b) of the 2011 Act), and
- to state whether particular matters have come to my attention.

Basis of independent examiner's statement

My examination was carried out in accordance with general Directions given by the Charity Commission. An examination includes a review of the accounting records kept by the charity and a comparison of the accounts presented with those records. It also includes consideration of any unusual items or disclosures in the accounts, and seeking explanations from the trustees concerning any such matters. The procedures undertaken do not provide all the evidence that would be required in an audit, and consequently no opinion is given as to whether the accounts present a 'true and fair view' and the report is limited to those matters set out in the statement below.

Independent examiner's statement

In connection with my examination, no matter has come to my attention:

- (1) which gives me reasonable cause to believe that in, any material respect, the requirements:
- · to keep accounting records in accordance with section 386 of the Companies Act 2006; and
- to prepare accounts which accord with the accounting records and comply with the accounting requirements of section 396 of the Companies Act 2006 and with the methods and principles of the Statement of Recommended Practice: Accounting and Reporting by Charities

have not been met; or

(2) to which, in my opinion, attention should be drawn in order to enable a proper understanding of the accounts to be reached.

3.3 Grants and donations

3.4 Donated goods and services

Donated goods are measured at fair value (the amount for which the asset could be exchanged) unless impractical to do so.

Donated services and facilities are included in the SoFA when received at the value of the gift to the charity provided that the value of the gift can be measured reliably. Donated services and facilities that are consumed immediately are recognised_as_income_with_the_equivalent_amount_recognised_as_an_expense under the appropriate heading in the SoFA.
