Directors' report for the year ended 31 December 2016

The directors present their annual report and the unaudited financial statements of the company for the year ended 31 December 2016.

Principal activity

The principal activity of Sundrop Farms Advisors Ltd is the provision of services to Sundrop Farms Holdings Ltd (its parent company) its subsidiaries and other related group companies (referred to below as the Sundrop Farms group), to support the business development activities of its parent company across the world and assistance in management oversight of its subsidiaries.

Business review & Future developments

The loss for the period, after taxation, amounted to £1,611,998 (2015: £1,532,117). The loss for the period is explained by the fact that the Sundrop group is in an expansion phase. Consequently, the bulk of the activities of Sundrop Farms Advisors Ltd is related to business development activities of the group remunerated on a success fee basis when projects close and the fees generated by management oversight services are limited. As project closes and the Sundrop group of companies grow, the company will increase revenues for its services and generate profits.

Financial risk management

As the company is essentially providing services internally for the Sundrop Farms group and is funded directly by Sundrop Farms Holdings, financial risks are limited. The company's success is directly linked to overall success of the Sundrop Farms group (and the ability of the Sundrop Farms group to successfully develop and close expansion projects) as it relies on development and management oversight fees generated by subsidiaries of Sundrop Farms Holdings Ltd to earn revenues and cover costs.

Foreign exchange risk

Foreign exchange risk is limited as the company is pricing its services based on a 'cost+' approach.

Credit risk

Credit risk is limited as revenues of the company is generated by services fees paid by subsidiaries of the Sundrop Farms group. The company's main exposure to third-party credit risk is on cash and cash equivalents.

Liquidity risk

The company relies on the funding of Sundrop Farms Holdings Ltd to fund the working capital required to sustain its services activities and is therefore exposed to the liquidity risks of its parent.

Interest rate risk

The company is not exposed to interest rate risk as it is funded by its parent company with non-interest bearing loans. Consequently, there is no material cash flow interest rate sensitivity.

Dividends

The directors do not recommend the payment of a dividend (2015: £nil).

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with IFRS requires the use of certain critical accounting estimates. It also requires management to exercise its judgement in the process of applying the company's accounting policies. The areas involving a higher degree of judgement or complexity, or areas where assumptions and estimates are significant to the financial statements are disclosed in note 3.

Going concern

In forming our opinion on the financial statements, which is not modified, we have considered the company's ability to continue as a going concern. In particular, the fact that the company is loss making, and is dependent on the continued support of its parent company, Sundrop Farms Holdings Limited, indicates the existence of a material uncertainty which may cast doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern. The directors have a reasonable expectation that the company has adequate resources to continue in operational existence for the foreseeable future as it is expected to receive financial support from its parent given the importance of the services provided by the company for the development of the Sundrop Farms group in general. The company therefore continues to adopt the going concern basis in preparing its financial statements, and the financial statements do not include any adjustments that would result if the company was unable to continue as a going concern.

Foreign currency translation

Functional and presentation currency

Items included in the financial statements of the entity are measured using the currency of the primary economic environment in which the entity operates ('the functional currency'). The financial statements are presented in 'GBP' (£), which is the company's presentation currency.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the average exchange rate prevailing during the month in which the transactions occurred. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at period-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognised in the income statement.

2 Summary of significant accounting policies (continued)

Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment is stated at historical cost less accumulated depreciation and accumulated impairment losses. The initial cost of an asset comprises purchase cost plus any costs directly attributable to bringing the asset into operation and an estimate of any decommissioning costs.

Subsequent costs are included in the asset's carrying amount or recognised as a separate asset, as appropriate, only when it is probable that future economic benefits associated with the item will flow to the company and the cost of the item can be measured reliably. The carrying amount of the replaced part is derecognised. All other repairs and maintenance are charged to the statement of comprehensive income during the financial period in which they are incurred.

Depreciation is calculated using the straight-line method to allocate their cost or revalued amounts to their residual values over their estimated useful lives, as follows:

Office equipment 20% Fixtures and fittings 20%

20% and 33.33% 20%, 25% and 50%

The assets' residual values and useful lives are reviewed, and adjusted if appropriate, at the end of each reporting period.

An asset's carrying amount is written down immediately to its recoverable amount if the asset's carrying amount is greater than its estimated recoverable amount.

Gains and losses on disposals are determined by comparing the proceeds with the carrying amount and are recognised within administrative expenses in the income statement.

An asset is derecognised upon disposal or when no future economic benefit is expected to arise from the asset.

Impairment of non-financial assets

The company assesses at each reporting date whether there is an indication that an asset may be impaired. If any such indication exists, or when annual impairment testing for an asset is required, the company makes an estimate of the asset's recoverable amount. An asset's recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. Impairment losses of continuing operations are recognised in the statement of comprehensive income in those expense categories consistent with the function of the impaired asset.

Investment

Investment in subsidiaries are held at cost less accumulated losses.

Classification of financial instruments

The company classifies its financial assets as "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial assets were acquired. Management determines the classification of its financial assets at initial recognition.

Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments that are not quoted in an active market. They are included in current assets, except for maturities greater than 12 months after the end of the reporting period and are not repayable on demand. These are classified as non-current assets. The company's loans and receivables comprise "trade and other receivables" and "cash and cash equivalents" in the balance sheet.

Loans and receivables (financial instruments)

(a) Trade and other receivables

Trade and other receivables are recognised initially at fair value and subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method, less provision for impairment. A provision for impairment of trade and other receivables is established when there is objective evidence that the company will not be able to collect all amounts due according to the original terms of the receivables. Significant financial difficulties of the debtor, probability that the debtor will enter bankruptcy or financial reorganisation, and default or delinquency in payments are considered indicators that the trade and other receivable is impaired. The amount of the provision is the difference between the asset's carrying amount and the present value of estimated future cash flows, discounted at the original effective interest rate. The carrying amount of the asset is reduced through the use of an allowance account, and the amount of the loss is recognised in the statement of comprehensive income within 'operating costs'. When a trade and other receivable is uncollectible, it is written off against the allowance account for trade receivables. Subsequent recoveries of amounts previously written off are credited against 'administrative expenses' in the statement of comprehensive income. Trade and receivables with a maturity of more than twelve months from the balance sheet date are shown as non-current trade and other receivables.

(b) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents includes cash in hand, deposits held at call or for short maturity periods with banks, other short-term highly liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less.

Ordinary shares

Ordinary shares are classified as equity.

Other financial liabilities at amortised cost (financial instruments)

Trade and other payables

Trade payables are obligations to pay for goods or services that have been acquired in the ordinary course of business from suppliers. Accounts payable are classified as current liabilities if payment is due within one period or less. If not, they are presented as non-current liabilities.

Trade and other payables are recognised initially at fair value and subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method.

Current and deferred income tax

The tax expense for the period comprises current and deferred tax. Tax is recognised in the income statement, except to the extent that it relates to items recognised in other comprehensive income or directly in equity. In this case, the tax is also recognised in other comprehensive income or directly in equity, respectively.

The current income tax charge is calculated on the basis of the tax laws enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date in the countries where the company and its subsidiaries operate and generate taxable income. Management periodically evaluates positions taken in tax returns with respect to situations in which applicable tax regulation is subject to interpretation. It establishes provisions where appropriate on the basis of amounts expected to be paid to the tax authorities.

Deferred income tax is recognised on temporary differences arising between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts in the financial statements. However, deferred tax liabilities are not recognised if they arise from the initial recognition of goodwill; deferred income tax is not accounted for if it arises from initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction other than a business combination that at the time of the transaction affects neither accounting nor taxable profit or loss. Deferred income tax is determined using tax rates (and laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the balance sheet date and are expected to apply when the related deferred income tax asset is realised or the deferred income tax liability is settled.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised only to the extent that it is probable that future taxable profit will be available against which the temporary differences can be utilised.

Deferred income tax liabilities are provided on taxable temporary differences arising from investments in subsidiaries, associates and joint arrangements, except for deferred income tax liability where the timing of the reversal of the temporary difference is controlled by the company and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Generally the company is unable to control the reversal of the temporary difference for associates. Only where there is an agreement in place that gives the company the ability to control the reversal of the temporary difference not recognised.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised on deductible temporary differences arising from investments in subsidiaries, associates and joint arrangements only to the extent that it is probable the temporary difference will reverse in the future and there is sufficient taxable profit available against which the temporary difference can be utilised.

Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to offset current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when the deferred income taxes assets and liabilities relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority on either the same taxable entity or different taxable entities where there is an intention to settle the balances on a net basis.

Revenue recognition

Revenue is measured at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable, and represents amounts receivable for goods supplied, stated net of discounts, returns and value added taxes. The company recognises revenue when the amount of revenue can be reliably measured; when it is probable that future economic benefits will flow to the entity; and when specific criteria have been met for each of the company's activities, as described below.

Revenue from rendering services to related companies is recognised and measured on the basis of costs and labour hours actually spent in providing such services.

Leases

Leases in which a significant portion of the risks and rewards of ownership are retained by the lessor are classified as operating leases. Payments made under operating leases (net of any incentives received from the lessor) are charged to the income statement on a straight-line basis over the period of the lease.

This deferred tax asset will be recognised when it is expected that the company will have sufficient taxable profits from which the losses can be deducted.
