Chairman's statement

The share price total return was 20.9% - nearly 2% ahead of the benchmark.

It's very pleasant to be able to report an increase in the company's net asset value for the first time since 2000. The Company's net asset value total return was 17.5%; the benchmark FTSE All-Share index returned 19.0%. As you are aware, only 85% of the company's assets are in equities, with the balance in bonds or cash. Because our equity portfolio needs to produce a certain level of income, the market's rotation into lowyielding high return stocks has been hard to replicate. As a result, the equities have tended to lag the recovery. However, our decision to maintain a 20% geared exposure to equities has more than compensated. Although our bond content has outperformed the FT Government All Stocks Index, bonds have lagged equities significantly as yields have risen globally. The share price total return, which incorporates net dividends as well as the movement in the share price, was 20.9% - nearly 2% ahead of the benchmark. This was due partly to the narrowing of the discount from 12.1% to 11.7%.

The board has declared a maintained interim dividend of 1,27p per share, payable on 19 December 2003 to shareholders on the register on 28 November 2003. Any increase in the full-year dividend will be made with the final dividend payment.

While investor confidence has improved in response to the significant monetary and fiscal stimuli of the last two years, markets will struggle to maintain the level of momentum that has been built up over the summer.

David Whitaker 29 October 2003

Manager's report

We will continue to concentrate on companies with high or improving returns on capital and real growth in dividends.

In my last report, I talked about the market's attractive valuation and the possibility that investors' appetite for equities could turn positive once economic conditions began to improve. The start of the financial period also coincided with a brief period when equities yielded more than government bonds for the first time since 1959. However, investors have instead bought a combination of highly geared and cyclical stocks - a complete mirror image of the previous period.

We have marginally increased our holdings in cyclical stocks. We bought new holdings in regional brewer Greene King and speciality chemical company Croda. We also bought P & O - we believe that a change in senior management will allow a major repositioning of the company. Meanwhile, we reduced our overweight exposure to the tobacco sector by selling Gallaher, which has outperformed significantly since we bought it in 2000. We added to HSBC and HBOS in the banking sector, and regional housebuilder Persimmon. We further reduced Wood Group. Although it is a quality business delivering high returns and growth, the next 18 months are likely to be difficult, as operational difficulties in the oil majors, especially in the deep water gulf, have delayed contracts. We also sold Scottish & Newcastle, the share price of which was already partly discounting a bid for the remaining business after the pubs are sold, which we do not believe is likely. We added to Bunzl, the supplier of international business consumables, and introduced Land Securities, which we believe offers an attractive total return. The company is also one of the major beneficiaries of any move towards the introduction of REITs (real estate investment trusts) in the UK.

The market has sadly neglected 'quality' shares (which we define as a high and consistent return on invested capital, strong cash generation and real dividend growth) over recent months, as cyclical and recovery stocks have dominated. Hopefully, as the market broadens out, it will return to being more discriminating with fundamentals reasserting themselves. This may be happening already. Some of the recent optimism on global recovery has been tempered slightly, as the US dollar looks to have regained downward momentum. And the widely expected weakening of the oil price continues to be elusive. Although after such a period of monetary and fiscal stimuli the consensus view is for a normal pickup in the US economy, the risks remain high - growth in employment remains hard to identify and valuations are not cheap. Overall we expect the UK equity market to go back to trading in a narrow range - at least until there is more evidence that the early signs of recovery will develop well into 2004. So we will continue to concentrate on companies with high or improving returns on capital and real growth in dividends.

Investor information

There are a number of ways in which you can hold shares in Securities Trust of Scotland. Of course, investment trusts - like any listed company - can be bought and sold through a stockbroker, shareshop or bank. But there are other ways too:

Martin Currie FundsCircle

If you want to buy more shares in the trust, then FundsCircle offers a simple way of doing so:

- Invest lump sums from £500 or save from £50 a month
- Top-up from £250 for existing investors
- No initial charge apart from stamp duty
- No annual charge

Martin Currie FundsCircle ISA

If you want tax-free returns, then FundsCircle ISA could be right for you:

- Low cost and tax efficient way to hold shares in the trust
- Invest lump sums from £1,000 or save from £50 a month
- No initial charge apart from stamp duty
- ◆ Low annual charge of 1%

Martin Currie FundsCircle PEP

You can transfer existing PEPs with other managers to the trust through the FundsCircle PEP Transfer Service:

- Low cost and tax efficient way to hold shares in the trust
- No initial charge apart from stamp duty
- Low annual charge of £30

Share exchange service

If you have shareholdings - large or small - in companies listed on the London Stock Exchange, you can exchange them for shares in Securities Trust of Scotland through Martin Currie FundsCircle or FundsCircle ISA.

With a low charge for selling your existing shares and no charge - except stamp duty - to buy shares through FundsCircle, we believe the share exchange service offers excellent value. And it's a good way of tidying up your portfolio.
