the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million (1990-1999) and is projected to increase by a further 1.5 million by 2010 (Office for National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase by 2.5 million by 2020 (Office for National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for ageing, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to participate in the life of their communities.
- Older people should be able to enjoy good health and well-being.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives, including: to improve the health and well-being of older people; to improve the social and economic participation of older people; and to improve the living conditions of older people.

The strategy is a key document for the development of policies and services for older people. It provides a framework for the development of policies and services that are based on the principles and objectives of the strategy.
